It is clear that language is used for more than one purpose. The man who hits his thumbnails with a hammer and utters a string of curses, is using language to relieve his feelings and needs no audience but himself.

But when a philosopher uses language to clarify his ideas on a subject, he use it as an instrument of the thought. When two women gossip over the fence or two men exchange greetings as they pass in the street, language is being used to strengthen the bonds between the members of society. Language, it seems is a multi-purpose instrument. One function, however, seems to be basic, language enables us to influence people's behaviour and thereby makes human cooperation possible. Some animals cooperate, specially the social animals like bees and ants, but human cooperation is more thorough, more detailed, more effective than that found any-where in the animal Kingdom. Human cooperation would be impossible without language.

- i) Why language is called a multi-purpose instrument ? (1)
 - ii) Mention two purposes for which language is used. (2)
 - iii) How is human cooperation different from cooperation among bees and ants ? (1)
 - iv) State any two major functions of language in your daily communication. (2)
